

Kleb Woods Nature Preserve GPS Project, August 5, 2017

The Houston Archeological Society held an orientation day for members at Kleb Woods Nature Preserve on Saturday, August 5, 2017. Ashley Jones, HAS member and professional archeologist for Raba Kistner, is the project leader and instructed the crew on using GPS units to set locations for foundations and other features around the site for future excavations and research. Kleb Woods Nature Preserve was a family farm owned by descendants of early German immigrants who settled in Harris County in the 1840s. In future projects at Kleb Woods HAS will be digging for foundation features of early buildings and other structures on the site. Please join us as we Dig Up Texas History (at Kleb Woods) one trowel full at a time!

Ashley Jones distributes GPS units to the crew

.... And this watering trough

Crew using GPS around the historic Kleb Home

And rusting pieces of this windmill

We marked each feature we discovered with our GPS including this interesting concrete feature

And would you believe we have our very own Elmer Kleb lookalike!!! (HAS member Tom Williams)